New Government Formed in Riot-Torn Jordan

Americans Flee To Israel Sector Of Jerusalem

Reports Marines Fire on Rioters Are Unconfirmed

JERUSALEM (Israeli sector) (UPI)—Jordan Radio today reported the formation of a new government in riot-torn Jordan where a week-end of anti-Western demonstrations sent Americans fleeing to the Israeli sector of Jerusalem.

The American embassy in Israel sent four more U. S. Marine Corps guards to the American consulate in the Jordan sector of the city.

U. S. consular sources in the Israeli sector could not confirm reports that American Marines guarding the consulate in the Jordan sector were forced to open fire at a mob of Arab demonstrators Sunday.

The sources said, however, that "no American personnel were injured in the rioting and reports to the contrary are wrong."

The new government, the third since Communist and nationalist-led rioting broke out against the Baghdad Pact a month ago, was headed by Samir El Rifa.

New Demonstrations Reported
It was announced from Amman as fresh demonstrations were reported in Nablus, 40 miles north of Jerusalem, and 50 miles north of Amman, with students rampaging through the town.

Gunfire could be heard crackling through the streets of the old Arab city of Jerusalem across the border from the Jewish sector and heavily armed soldiers could be seen patrolling the nearly deserted streets.

The radio broadcast was the first direct word from Amman since a state of emergency was declared there when the rioting got out of hand Saturday with attacks on American government buildings and increased in scope over Sunday.

El Rifa became premier and minister of interior in the new cabinet list presented to 20-year-old King Hussein who gave his approval.

Ibrahim Hashim, the premier of the 18-day-old caretaker government which resigned Saturday, was named vice premier and minister of state. Sala El-Madham was named as minister of defense and justice.

The new government was formed at the height of the Arab countries' greatest crises. Since Saturday, mobs have roamed the streets of Amman, Jordan Jerusalem and other Jordan cities sacking U. S. and British diplomatic offices and burning United Nations installations. Demonstrations also continued in Damascus, Syria, in "solidarity" with the Jordan rioters.

Syrian press reports said 11 Jordanians had been killed in the Jordan riots, with 38 wounded and 294 injured.

Several persons were reported shot and wounded by Arab Legionnaires in the Jordan sector of Jerusalem today for violating the curfew.

King Hussein said Jordan was eager to maintain friendly relations with all Arab countries, particularly on the Palestine question.

Hussein made no mention of the Baghdad Pact which links Britain, Iraq, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan.

The British Foreign Office in London said "a certain amount of Communist activity" helped promote the Jordan rioting.

John H. L. Parish In Representative Race; Scott May Seek Post

In the race for the Republican nomination for state representative in the April primary is John H. L. Parish of Harrisburg.

Parish, a steelworker and former restaurant operator, is well-known in political circles. He has been in primaries seeking nomination for county sheriff and city commissioner.

He reported his petitions are ready for filing.

There were reports today of two persons who are considering running in district races.

Atty. Don Scott of Harrisburg, it was learned, may run for delegate to the Democratic national convention.

Also, it was reported, the mayor of Johnston City, K. Neil Thurmond, may run in the Democratic primary for state representative from this, the 59th district.

Airman, Left at Altar, Leaves For Overseas

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI)—An Air Force flyer left for Japan today to decide whether to forget or forgive the pretty socialite who left him stranded at the altar to go on a spree with a former playboy suitor.

Lt. John Owens admitted he still loved Juliette Wehle.

But he spent the last hours of a now lonely leave from his resolve to go to Japan to think it over. "She's a pretty mixed-up girl," he said.

Owens, 24, a former Colgate University football quarterback, was left at the altar Saturday when Juliette, clad only in a nightgown and housecoat, slipped from her home to go to New York City on a 15-hour junket with playboy Stephen Hahn.

Runaway Juliette told the flyer she still loved him. And her family urged that they go ahead with the ceremony. But Owens spent seven hours with her and left for a friend's home in Towanda, Pa., and then to New York for a few days before leaving for his Far Eastern assignment.

Juliette's father, Harold J. Wehle, a retired businessman, announced after the frustrated "reconciliation."

"There definitely will be no wedding with any man now. We'll have to get that kid of ours back on her feet. We are trying to collect ourselves."

Owens said Juliette did not know why she ran off with Hahn, an unemployed son of a wealthy air rifle manufacturer.

James W. Karraker, 46, Found Shot To Death in His Home at Winnetka

A memorial service will be held Tuesday at the Unitarian church in Winnetka, Chicago suburb, for James W. Karraker, 46-year-old former Harrisburg resident who was found dead Saturday.

The body already has been cremated and his widow was undecided today as to the place of burial. It was requested that no flowers be sent.

Karraker, who was vice president of the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago, was found shot to death Saturday in a second floor room of his home at 1136 Oak street, Winnetka. A .30 calibre carbine lay near the body.

An inquest was scheduled to be held at noon today at Winnetka. Karraker had resided in Cook county since his graduation from the University of Illinois in 1931. He was graduated from Harrisburg Township high school in the Class of 1927.

His mother died while Karraker was in high school here. His father, the late O. M. Karraker, was a prominent Harrisburg banker who resigned as president of the First National bank in the middle thirties to become secretary of the Illinois Teachers Retirement fund at Springfield, a post he held for several years. His father also was a University of Illinois trustee for a term.

He is survived by his widow, Margaret, and three children, David, a college student; John, in high school; and Jean, the youngest child.

Eldorado Youth, Now Out on Bond, Faces New Charge

Jackie Cox, Eldorado youth now out on bond on a charge of burglarizing an Eldorado home, was in more trouble today.

Cox was picked up by state police last night at the request of Williamson county authorities, who said Cox was driving a stolen truck.

They told Sheriff William T. Barrett that Cox, who had been at Marion, knocked at a farm house door near the Route 13-166 intersection four miles east of Marion and when nobody came to the door he drove off in a truck parked in the yard.

The man of the house, however, saw the truck drive off toward Harrisburg. He called Williamson county authorities, who radioed state police in this area. Cox was stopped and arrested near the Harrisburg swimming pool by State Policemen Michael Taggart and Arthur F. Athmer. He was jailed here to await officers from Marion.

Cox at present is charged with participating in the theft of a television set and radio from a home in Eldorado several months ago.

Three Illinois Youths Face Beating Charges

An Eldorado youth and two from Carmi were held under bonds of $1,000 each at Madisonville, Ky., with assault and battery in the alleged slapping of a Nebo, Ky., cheer leader and the beating of her young male companion.

Jailed Eldorado were Don Caraway, 18, Eldorado and David Pierce, 18, and Jerry Fulkerson, 19, both of Carmi. A fourth, Robert Curtis, 37, Carmi, was jailed for 30 days for drunkenness.

Officials said the charges grew out of an altercation Friday night near South Hopkins high school. Bobby Bruce, Nebo, and two cheerleaders, Ann McKnight and Eleanor Townsend were in a car en route to a basketball game.

As Bruce turned into the school driveway, officers said, his car and an auto driven by Curtis collided. As Bruce conversed with Curtis about the accident, officers continued, Pierce got into the Bruce car and attempted to put his arms around Miss McKnight. She told officers she struggled and that Pierce slapped her.

At this point, it was said, Bruce ordered Pierce out of his car. As he got out, Pierce is said to have hit Bruce in the mouth and about the face as Bruce was held by Caraway and Fulkerson.

Retired Gallatin County Farmer Dies

Isaac "Ike" Lemons, 77, retired Gallatin county farmer, died at his home north of Ridgway Saturday.

He is survived by his wife, Effie, and two daughters, Mrs. Hubert Cox and Mrs. Leslie Reeder, both of the Ridgway area.

Funeral services were held today at 11 a. m. at the Church of God in Ridgway and burial was in the James cemetery.

Distressed Area Bill Offered By Eisenhower

Provides For Loans And Grants to Communities

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for new authority to help economically distressed communities develop new industry.

The government would make up to 50 million dollars of loans for this purpose and also outright grants of 1 to 2 million dollars.

The President's proposal was embodied in a bill delivered to the Capitol for introduction in the House by Rep. Ivor D. Fenton (R-Pa.). His district has been hit by unemployment in the hard coal industry.

Under the President's plan, loans to build, buy, or remodel factories, or to develop land for this purpose, could be made from a 50-million-dollar "area assistance fund."

Under the proposal, development loans would be made on terms and conditions specified by the secretary of commerce, subject to a number of restrictions. No loan could exceed 25 per cent of the project's total cost. At least 15 per cent of the total would have to be supplied by local groups or agencies.

Federal aid could not be advanced for projects likely to increase unemployment in other areas. Nor could it be supplied unless private loans, at reasonable rates, were not available. Communities to be helped would have to be certified by the secretary of labor as areas of "substantial and persistent unemployment." The standard for such certification is unemployment of 8 per cent or more.

U. S. A-Bombers Arrive in Japan

JOHNSON AIR BASE, Japan (AP)—Five U. S. Air Force B57 atom bombers landed today at their new base outside Tokyo to join the American defense of this atom-jittery nation.

The spokesman said their arrival did not make Japan an American "atom base" as Socialists and Communists have charged since such planes as F84 Thunderjets—also capable of carrying an atom bomb—have long been based in Japan.

Fined for Blocking Highway

State police last night found a car stopped on the Route 45 pavement near the Barnett street intersection and jailed John H. McDonald of Walnut Grove, whom they charged with blocking the highway and intoxication.

Arrested today before Justice of the Peace Vern Joyner Jr., McDonald pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined.

County officers said that McDonald will be brought up Friday in county court on a citation for failure to pay an old fine he owed for drunken driving. He was given five months to pay the fine about nine months ago.

Eisenhower Returns to Full Swing Work; Health Key Factor in Future Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower returned to the "full swing" of the presidency today. He still hasn't decided finally whether to run for re-election.

How he reacts to a stepped-up pace of work will be one of the determining factors. He soon will get down to brass tacks discussions with his advisers on the second term issue.

Mr. Eisenhower, obviously invigorated and rested after an 11-day vacation at Key West, Fla., was on the job at 7 a. m. CST and spent one of his busier days at the White House since his Sept. 24 heart attack.

Another News Conference

The White House buzzed with activity, reflecting Mr. Eisenhower's informal news conference statement at Key West Sunday that he was ready to resume full operations—although he still must undergo a series of medical check-ups.

He told newsmen his health is one of the key factors in formulating a final decision whether to seek re-election. He said his answer might come before March 1 and it might be later.

The President started off today with an hour-long conference with Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers. They talked about the economic message he will send to Congress Jan. 23.

He also: 1. Planned tentatively to hold a full-dress news conference sometime next week.

2. Conferred at length with Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President; and other White House aides.

3. Signed a long list of appointments to federal jobs for submission to the Senate.

4. Called back to duty as his appointment secretary Bernard M. Shanley, New Jersey Republican leader who had resigned last Nov. 15 to return to private life.

Daughter of Former Residents Missing From Home in Lincoln

The 13-year-old daughter of parents who formerly lived near Harrisburg is missing and the family has sent her description to Harrisburg in case she turns up in this area.

She is Anita Beth Choate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Atheron Choate, who left her home at Lincoln, Ill., Thursday morning, presumably en route to school, and did not return.

It is believed that she is with a 14-year-old girl, Sandra Green of Lincoln.

Anita is 5-3, weighs 105 pounds, has black hair and brown eyes. She was wearing a long blue coat, brown skirt, white and brown blouse and black shoes. Sandra is the same height and weight.

Anita's parents live at 721 North Sangamon at Lincoln and their telephone number is 1256-K.

Two Runs by Fire Department

Two fire runs were made over the week-end. At 12:18 p. m. Saturday a run was made to extinguish a grass fire in the 1000 block of South Feazel. At 9:30 p. m. the same day a furnace blower motor at the home of Dee Hester, 219 West Church, became defective and filled the house with smoke.

Asks Soil Bank To Cut Crops 25 Million Acres

'Dollar Limit' Urged on Price Support Loans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today submitted to Congress a nine-point farm program featuring a one-billion-dollar "soil bank" plan designed to take 25 million acres of cropland out of production during the next three years.

The President also urged Congress to place a "dollar limit" on the size of price support loans to individual farmers and farming units. The limit, he said, should be sufficiently high to protect family-size farms which operate efficiently.

He further proposed that gasoline used on farms be exempt from federal tax. He estimated that half the gasoline farmers buy is for tractors and other farm equipment.

In a 7,000 word special message to the House and Senate, Mr. Eisenhower said that "no problem before the Congress demands more urgent attention" than the plight of the nation's farmers.

"They find their prices and incomes depressed and the nation's greatest prosperity," he said.

He said the government must move "swiftly" to provide remedies, particularly for the key problem of piled-up surpluses which are hanging over farm markets and holding down prices.

Proposes Two Methods
First item in his nine-point program was the soil bank plan, which consisted of two different methods of cutting farm production:

1. An "acreage reserve program." Mr. Eisenhower said this program would be aimed at achieving a "voluntary reduction" of as much as 20 per cent in the acreage already allotted to farmers for such major surplus crops as wheat and cotton.

In return for cutting their acreage (including plowing under spring wheat already planted) farmers would receive certificates which would be "equal to a percentage of the value of the crop" they would normally have harvested from the land. These certificates would be redeemed by the government either in cash or in surplus commodities from the government's own hoard.

Mr. Eisenhower did not put a dollar price tag on this program. But he said the "real cost" to the taxpayers would be "substantially less than the apparent cost" of the certificates given to farmers, since the program actually will be "financed with commodities already

Auto Industry Problem

Editorial By Bruce Blossat
While the nation's motorists were having their greatest year in 1955, with nearly 8,000,000 cars produced, a problem of sorts was building up for them. Despite record sales volume, dealers watched their backlogs of cars more than double in the 12-month span.

On January 1, 1955, their stocks came to 380,000 cars. Now they total 800,000, having risen 440,000 during the year.
Somehow, some way, the manufacturers are going to have to take account of these figures in 1956. If they were to produce and sell just what they did in 1955, obviously the dealers' backlog would climb still further.

Either they must press sales upward to absorb some of these stocks, or cut back production to reduce them.

At least a couple of top motor executives, including Harlow H. Curtis, president of General Motors, foresee a 1956 car production drop of from 12 to 15 per cent. One other is more optimistic, looking for a strengthened demand in the months ahead.

An output reduced by 12 to 15 per cent, if matched with sales approximating 1955 figures, would allow dealers to cut deeply into their burdensome stocks. Production slashed by perhaps a mere five per cent would just enable dealers to hold the backlog at its present level—which many consider too high.

If these cuts are to be avoided, then dealers must sell many more cars than they did in 1955. Curtis, for one, appears to doubt that this is likely. Even in the year just closed, some dealers went to extremes in offering liberal credit in order to unload the stuff piling in on them from the makers.

This situation was a cause of concern both in industry and government. If credit in 1956 is as a consequence a bit tighter, it may not be easy to push sales to a new high. All the general economic forecasts for 1956 are pretty cheerful. But it would be foolish to imagine that the automobile industry could cut back more than 10 per cent without having it show in the whole economy. Car-making ramifies widely through many other basic industries which supply materials and parts.

Should the cuts take place and the economy contract a little, we should keep in mind, however, that this doesn't spell recession. The economy is bound to fluctuate some from time to time. A 12 per cent reduction in car output would mean 7,000,000 cars in 1956 — second greatest in our history. Hardly a situation calling for the wringing of hands.

DREW PEARSON TELECASTS FROM INSIDE IRON LUNG—As part of his job as National Chairman of Iron Lung Day, January 8, Drew Pearson gave his weekly telecast from inside an iron lung in Providence Hospital, Washington. Once locked inside, he said he never wanted to get out of anything so much in his life. He spent a good part of the night in the lung. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON SAYS: It Isn't Fun To Be Locked In An Iron Lung; Need For Polio Funds Continues Despite Salk Vaccine; March Of Dimes Has To Pay Banks $9,000,000 Borrowed To Finance Salk Vaccine.

WASHINGTON.—The other evening I went down to the Providence hospital in Washington and did a telecast from inside an iron lung. I confess that I approached the assignment with no particular qualms and the feeling that this might be a good way to sneak in a few hours of rest. I also confess that I never wanted to get out of a tight spot so much in my life.

I found myself locked in, an airtight pad around my neck, head out in the free world, body a prisoner, hands unable to touch my head, unable even to scratch my nose. . . . You can see the world around you through a mirror, but you can't see your feet, arms, any part of you. . . . it's as if your head were completely severed from your body. . . . A body that breathes whether you want it to or not. . . . breathes in quick intakes or long intakes according to how your nurse adjusts the speed of the bellows at the end of the lung. . . . she turns a gadget and you breathe — up and down, faster, slower, whether you want to breathe that way or not.

It's an eerie sound, that breathing, like the wash of waves on the shore, a steady pounding of the air, pounding in, sucking out, forcing your lungs to expand and contract. . . . pound-suck. . . . expand-contraction. . . . in-out. . . . all night long. You have to coordinate and cooperate. You don't argue with an iron lung. It's the boss. It does the breathing. And the sooner you relax and let it do the work the better off you are.

So you lie there with that pound, pound, pound forcing your own lungs open and closed; and finally you get over the initial stages of claustrophobia and settle down as I did to several hours of talking to a near-by patient, Mrs. Betty Grant, on how to live in an iron lung and on its importance in the present battle against polio.

BASIL O'CONNOR'S DEBT

I suppose my colleagues will be kidding me about putting across a newspaper stunt, and of course telecasting or dictating a column from an iron lung might be classified as such.

But it came about when I reported what most people didn't know, that Basil O'Connor, president of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, had gone out and borrowed $9,000,000 to finance the manufacture of Salk vaccine last winter so American children could have that precious preventive one year early.

Naturally he now has to pay the money back. And to help pay it back I agreed to become chairman of iron lung day to help raise money for the March of Dimes and to help put an iron lung in every community.

You can't be chairman of iron lung day until you've been in one of these contraptions and know something about it. Hence the telecast and the hours lying on your back listening to that eerie pound of the air swishing into the lung, compressing-expanding your own lung, swish-suck, swish-suck, in and out, as your chest goes up and down.

ADULT POLIO INCREASES
Despite the miracle of the Salk vaccine, one tragedy about polio is that the proportion of adult polio is increasing. FDR was stricken, it should be remembered, at the age of 39. Since then, in fact, since 1944, adult polio has increased 25 per cent. Yet it will be five years before there will be enough Salk vaccine to get around to treating adults. Meanwhile the type that usually strikes them is bulbar polio, paralysis of the chest, which requires an iron lung immediately and constantly.

If the patient doesn't have an iron lung, he dies. Or if he's taken out of the lung for more than a minute or two he dies. That air rushing into the lung, that eerie pound-swish that I had such a time getting used to, is life to a polio patient.

Iron lungs are expensive. They cost $1,650 out of March of Dimes funds. Attachments may add up to another $1,500. A portable chest respirator to permit the patient to go from one hospital to another or one room to another costs $1,550 to $1,740. A rocking hospital bed to coax the patient's chest back into the habit of breathing, after he's been in the lung for a couple of months, costs $775.

All this is so expensive that almost no patients can afford private treatment. They must become charges of the March of Dimes.

"We could hardly get along without the equipment and help furnished us by the March of Dimes," Sister Mary Ellen, graciously efficient superintendent of Providence hospital, told me.

25 MILLION FOR CARE
This is one of the heaviest expenses of the polio foundation, namely, taking care of patients already stricken with polio, both children and adults. But despite the discovery of Salk vaccine, they cannot be abandoned. So, in addition to raising money to pay off Basil O'Connor's $9,000,000 debt for the Salk vaccine, 68,000 patients already stricken and on the road to recovery need funds for leg braces, wheel chairs, nursing care, and therapeutic treatment.

Last year the foundation spent $29,000,000 on their care and recovery.

In addition, all too many respiratory or iron-lung patients must have continuing treatment. The hospitals can't just turn off the air and let them die. One iron-lung patient, alone, a Texas engineer, cost the Polio Foundation $13,255.15 in one year. Nursing was $2,706.75; hospitalization $8,506.05; medical $950; wheel chair $299.70; assistive devices $240; generator $525.65.

All this the Polio Foundation tries to supply—with your help—which is why I thought it was important to spend an evening at Providence hospital inside one of those cylinder prisons which makes your body seem cut off from your head, where you lie listening to the air pounding like rhythmic waves on an ocean beach, pushing your lungs flat, pulling them open. . . . push, pull, pushing them open. . . . You lie there thinking of the poor devils who can't have the nurse unlock the cylinder when they've had enough, but have to stay there morning and night, unable to shave, unable to feed themselves, hold a telephone, write a letter, even unable to scratch their noses.

You lie there, thinking, as I did, how lucky you are, and finally you tell the nurse to let you out, hoping that you can convey, via the typewriter, some slight idea of how great is the need to continue the battle — continue the March of Dimes.

Wright Leans Toward Race For Governor

Says He 'Might As Well' Run Against Stratton

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — State Treasurer Warren E. Wright Sunday said he "might as well" run against Gov. William G. Stratton in the April Republican primary.

Wright left little doubt he leans toward a race for the top state spot on the GOP ticket as he discussed his political plans with the United Press.

But he said he would still file nominating petitions for both governor and secretary of state, probably just before the deadline in the Jan. 16-23 filing period.

He said he then will withdraw one set of petitions after announcing between Jan. 23-28 at a "northern Illinois" political rally which office he will seek.

Asked whether he would oppose Stratton or Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter, Wright said: "I might as well run against Stratton, I have to run against both of them anyway."

Predicts Rough Sledding

Told that some of his political aides had said it would be a much tougher task to beat the head of the ticket, Wright answered, "I'm sure it will be a tough row to hoe, but I can't recall being in a political campaign that wasn't tough."

Wright said most of his petitions by political workers throughout the state, and in a private survey by his aides, showed persons asked to sign prefer to endorse him for the gubernatorial race.

"It's running about 60 per cent for governor and 40 per cent for secretary of state," he said.

While Wright would not say so directly, it is understood the treasurer had told Stratton shortly after his 1954 election that he wished to oppose Carpenter in 1956. Stratton later came out for nomination and election of all incumbent state GOP officers as a "team."

This would leave Wright without a place on the ticket. The constitutional bar against a state treasurer serving successive terms will not be lifted until 1958.

Wright contended Stratton had been for the "open" primary, where each candidate seeks the nomination on his own, in both 1952 and 1954. But Wright said now that Stratton was seeking reelection in office he had abandoned the open primary principle and closed the party ranks against the state treasurer.

Wright said Sunday he had supported Stratton in the 1952 primary while Carpenter had supported the then-president of the Cook County Board, William Erickson, until Erickson withdrew. "And Stratton knows this is true," Wright said.

Wright said he had "never considered" running for Congress in the 21st District despite assurances from GOP leaders, including Stratton aides, that the nomination was his if he wanted it. He said both he and his wife were opposed to any move to Washington.

Eisenhower Offers 9-Point Farm Program

owned and paid for by the government.

2. The "conservation reserve." Under this program, farmers would be asked to "contract voluntarily with the government to shift into forage, trees and water storage" croplands which are now in need of conservation measures.

"Any farmer would be eligible to participate in this program regardless of the crop he produces or the area where his farm is located," Mr. Eisenhower said. "I would hope that some 25 million acres would be brought into the conservation reserve."

He left it up to Congress to work out the details of the payments but proposed that about $50 million dollars be invested in the program during the calendar year 1956 and a total of about a billion dollars over the next three years.

Other highlights of his program: Surplus Disposal
Recommended a change in the law to permit sale of government-owned surplus products on the domestic market at lower prices than are now possible. Present law requires a minimum price of 105 per cent of the support price, plus carrying charges. Mr. Eisenhower said the minimum should be reduced to the support level plus carrying charges.

He also asked for relaxation of export laws which limit exports of surplus farm products to "friendly nations only"—a hint that efforts may be made to sell or trade some farm surpluses to iron curtain countries.

Mr. Eisenhower announced that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson is appointing a top-level "surplus disposal administrator" to supervise the overall surplus disposal program.

Commodity Programs
Corn: Mr. Eisenhower offered Congress two alternatives for attacking the corn surplus. One method, he said, would be to work out a way of adapting the acreage reserve program to corn. The other would be "to eliminate acreage allotments for corn and put price supports for corn on a discretionary basis comparable with other feed grains." Under the latter alternative, he said, "all corn producers would be eligible for price supports at a level substantially above the market price which prevailed during the 1955 harvest."

Wheat: "The overall soil bank plan is 'particularly well suited' to wheat, but other changes should also be made. The House should 'promptly' pass a bill, already approved by the Senate, exempting from marketing quotas those wheat farmers who use all the wheat they raise as feed, food or seed on their own farms."

He also recommended legislation to authorize sale of low-quality wheat owned by the government for the livestock feed, a bill to expand the non-commercial wheat area beyond the 12 states now designated, and a one-year extension of legislation exempting durum wheat from controls.

Cotton: Congress should consider replacing acreage allotments on cotton with quantity allotments beginning with the crop year of 1957. "Rapidly advancing technology" has so stepped up cotton yields per acre that the old acreage allotment system no longer is an adequate production control, 15 million bales of cotton were grown in 1955 on an acreage calculated to yield only 10 million bales.

Rice: As he did with corn, Mr. Eisenhower offered Congress two alternative solutions: Place rice under the acreage reserve program; or eliminate all production controls and put price supports on a "discretionary basis at levels which would permit rice producers to improve their competitive market position." Rice is now one of the "basic" crops which must be supported at 75 to 90 per cent of parity.

Peanuts: Recommended elimination of the present legal floor on the national acreage allotment for peanuts, to make possible sharper cutbacks in peanut acreage allotments.

Sugar: "The legislation to renew the Sugar Act of 1948, as amended, should promptly be completed."

School Milk Program: Recommended two-year extension with authority

Bull Dogs Lose Close, 53-51, Tilt to Marion

Locals Miss too Many Good Shots; Play W. Frankfort Here Friday

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs, who dropped two South Seven basketball games last week-end, this week will play only one foe, West Frankfort, and it will be another conference game at Davenport gym.

After bowing at Centralia, 69-58, Friday evening, the locals were taken into camp by the Marion Wildcats, 53-51, here the following night.

Harrisburg should have beaten the smaller Marion crew, but blew too many good shots. In fact, in the final seconds guard Bill Henshaw drove in for a shot which clipped deep into the net, then rolled around and came out again. A successful basket would have tied the score and given the Bull Dogs life.

Lead Most of Way

After taking a 2-1 lead at the outset, Harrisburg led all the way except for four brief periods: With only two minutes and a half to go in the third quarter when the Wildcats went out in front 29-28, midway in the last quarter when they tied the count at 41-41 and 47-47; and in the last 20 seconds when they went ahead 53-51 to win.

But that is basketball and the locals have another defeat that could have been victory.

The first half of the game was wild and ragged with both teams off shooting form. In fact, the two teams had combined on 18 field goal attempts before Tony Beal sent one through the hoop to give the locals a 2-1 lead.

The quarter ended 6-3 in favor of Harrisburg in a period in which the action was fairly furious.

Harrisburg ran up a 15-5 lead midway in the second quarter and at that point Marion put on its famous all-court press, which was successful for the Williamson county boys. They narrowed the gap to 15-13 before the locals went out in front 20-13 at half-time.

At the end of the third period Harrisburg led, 36-33.

In the preliminary the Wildkittens beat the Bull Pups, 65-57, leading 11-8 at the quarter, 26-22 at half-time and 48-36 at the end of the third period. Chuck Henshaw was high for Harrisburg with 20 points. Ray Hassett had 17, Mike Walker 8, Donald Biggs and Eddie Price 4 each and Ronnie Rauh 2. Phillip Kane also saw action.

Iowa Loses Its Conference Opener to Michigan State; Indiana, Michigan Win

CHICAGO — The "mystery team" of Big Ten basketball, Iowa, is on the brink of being knocked out of this year's championship race with the season only 8 days old.

The defending Big Ten champs take a four-game losing streak to Columbus tonight where they come face to face with the phenomenal Robin Freeman, the nation's leading scorer, and an Ohio State five that has won 8 of 9 games.

Unless Bucky O'Connor's Hawkeyes make an about face tonight, they can forget about repeating for the Big Ten title.

Iowa Drops Opener
With four starters back from last year's championship squad, Iowa couldn't protect a 13-point lead in its conference debut with Michigan State Saturday night.

Julius McCoy, who had been held to two points in the first half, flipped in two free throws and the winning basket all in the final 1:08 of play to give the Spartans a 65-64 triumph.

Ohio State, most-improved team in the conference after finishing last in the 1955 standings, won its Big Ten opener against Michigan last Monday.

Three other conference games tonight find Wisconsin at Illinois, Indiana at Minnesota and Purdue at Michigan.

Indiana Beats Wisconsin
Indiana had to erase a 16-point deficit to defeat a surprisingly tough Wisconsin five Saturday, 75-71, before a national television audience.

Wisconsin, playing its best game of the season, led 38-31 at half-time before Hoosier sophomores Charlie Brown and 6-foot, 9-inch center Archie Dees rang the curtain on its gallant upset attempt.

Brown and Dees sparked the Hoosiers rally in the final seven minutes and ended up with 19 points apiece.

Michigan upset Minnesota on the Gophers' home court in overtime, 81-79, on a 25-foot shot by guard Jim Shearon with four seconds remaining.

Shearon Boosts Wolves
Shearon's long one-hander earned the Wolverines their first Big Ten triumph against one defeat after a mediocre pre-season record of 4 wins and 3 defeats.

Purdue was the only "home" team to emerge victorious in four games Saturday, clipping Northwestern's clawless Wildcats, 68-54. It was the Boilermakers' second conference triumph and sixth in a row. Veterans Dan Thornburg and Joe Sesson led the way with 18 and 17 points respectively, though Northwestern's Dick Mast took scoring honors with 20.

A full slate of five conference games are scheduled Saturday. Illinois will travel to Indiana, Minnesota is at Iowa, Michigan is at Northwestern, Ohio State entertains Wisconsin and Purdue plays at Michigan State in the nationally televised game.

Wildcats Edge McLeansboro in Close 69-64 Tilt

Carrier Mills and McLeansboro battled for four full quarters Saturday night before Carrier Mills edged out a 69-65 decision. The game was played on the winners' court.

The score was close throughout with the biggest margin at any time being a seven-point spread in favor of Carrier Mills early in the second quarter when the Wildcats went ahead 27-20. However the gap was narrowed quickly when Sandusky hit twice and Sloan once for McLeansboro. Each club built up five-point leads occasionally afterward, but these leads were short lived.

With only 30 seconds remaining in the game the count was knotted 65-65, but the winners slipped in for two fielders in the closing ticks to win.

An interesting side issue, especially with Carrier Mills followers, was the possibility of Oliver Rollins scoring the 2,000th point of his varsity career.

Rollins Scores 26 Points

However "Big Ollie," needing 36 points to hit the magic 2,000 circle, collected 26 and is ten short of the immediate goal. It is very possible he would have gone over the 2,000 mark, but he collected four fouls before the second quarter was over and was pulled out of the game by Coach Claud Shelton. Rollins missed approximately a third of the second frame and nearly all of the third, being used only for the tipoff as the third quarter started.

Rollins had scored 14 points in a fine first quarter, made just two in the abbreviated second and none in the third. Playing all the fourth frame Rollins hit for ten points to run his total for the night to 26.

Roger Sloan, McLeansboro's fine center, also was used sparingly from midway in the second quarter to the start of the fourth as he also was carrying four fouls.

As the clubs battled on even terms the score was knotted six times in the first quarter, five times in the second and at the end of the third frame the score read 53-51.

Play Attacks Saturday

McLeansboro went ahead early in the final frame on a fielder and two free tosses by Sandusky and maintained a slim lead until Jim Reid, CM guard, hit two free tosses to put his team in front 61-60 with 3:30 to play. With 1:20 to play the score was tied 65-65.

Carrier Mills then controlled the ball for nearly a minute and broke Storms clear for a fielder with 30 seconds remaining. McLeansboro shot and missed and Carrier Mills again controlled the ball. With only a second or two left Fitts broke in fast for a layup that iced the game.

McLeansboro took the preliminary game 77-56.

Carrier Mills will be idle until Saturday, Jan. 14, when the Wildcats travel to Carbondale. Attucks, McLeansboro travels to Carmi Friday.

Eldorado Eagles Trim Galatia

The Eldorado Eagles took a 59-49 game from Galatia Saturday night. The game was played at Eldorado.

The score was close all the way, but Eldorado held slight leads at the end of every period, 13-12, 29-23, 42-34 and the final score 59-49.

Galatia played without the services of two regulars, John Tate, who became ill during the Christmas holidays, missed action in two games last week, but is expected to be ready for play Tuesday.

Ron Gray, 5-10 senior, suffered a foot injury at Cave-in-Rock last Friday and may be out for the remainder of the season. He is almost sure to be idle the rest of this month, even if he does return to the lineup later.

McFarland of Galatia scored 20 points to take scoring honors for the night. Eldorado's "big two"—Lovellette and Clark—paced the Eagles with 18 points each.

Eldorado won the preliminary game 69-41.

Galatia entertains Equality Tuesday. Next game for Eldorado is Friday, when Johnston City visits the Eagle gym.

Tatum Accepts North Carolina Coaching Post

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Big Jim Tatum, the drawing defensive genius who molded a gridiron dynasty at Maryland, today took on the job of re-building North Carolina's football fortunes.

A few hours after announcing his resignation as the Terrapins' head coach, Tatum flew to Los Angeles where he indicated one of his main tasks was to start looking for coaching assistants in his new post.

Tatum made it clear that he would like to take his current assistants at Maryland to Chapel Hill with him. Line Coach Bob Ward, Backfield Coach Tommy Mont, Assistant Coach Emmett Cheek, End Coach Ed Kensler and Chief Scout Eddie Teague. But he also said "they may want to stay at Maryland and certainly Maryland should have a chance to retain them."

Boost In Salary

Tatum accepted North Carolina's offer of a reported five-year contract at $15,000 a year plus other inducements that would top his current annual salary of approximately $17,000. Some sources claimed the North Carolina agreement is for 10 years but Tatum refused to comment on this except to say "ten years is a long time."

Right on the heels of his resignation came a burst of speculation on his possible successor. Maryland President Wilson H. Elkins said no announcement of a new coach would be made "for some time."

Candidates For Post

Among the early subjects of speculation were:
Mike Nixon, highly-rated backfield coach of the professional Washington Redskins.
Mont and Ward, Tatum's backfield and line coaches respectively, both regarded as promising young mentors.

Jack Hennemer, a former Tatum assistant who coached Calgary in the Canadian League last season.
Bill Meek, another former Tatum aide who is now head coach at Houston.

Paul Bryant, Tatum's predecessor at Maryland and now at Texas A & M.

Carl Brumbaugh of Texas Western, an old friend of Maryland President Elkins.

SIU Comes from Behind to Defeat Michigan Normal

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Southern Illinois university came from behind in the last five minutes of play to trip Michigan Normal, 78-73, here Saturday night for SIU's sixth win out of the past seven games.

It was Southern's second conference win without a loss and moved the Salukis into title contention with Western Illinois, the favorite, and Eastern Illinois. All three teams are undefeated in loop play. Michigan Normal led, 39-37, at the half and held a slight advantage most of the second half until SIU forward Seymour Bryson sank two free throws to put Southern ahead, 69-68, with five minutes left. Michigan Normal fought back, but the Salukis maintained a narrow lead for the remaining minutes.

Gordon Lambert, Marion, who had sparked SIU to a win over Central Michigan the night before, again was Southern's big gun as he scored 14 points although he played only half the game. He hit four straight field goal attempts from outcourt at the beginning of the second half to keep Southern in the game.

Four Southern players, Joe Johnson and Larry Whitlock, both of Mt. Vernon; Warren Talley, Pinckneyville; and Gus Doss, East St. Louis, had 11 points apiece. Reserve guard Bill Woods, who played almost the entire preliminary, scored eight points.

SIU began workouts today in preparation for a clash with Washington University of St. Louis there Wednesday night, Jan. 11. Washington U. earlier this year dropped a heart-breaking one-point decision to the University of Illinois.

In Saturday's preliminary, St. Louis University freshmen edged out SIU's Junior Varsity, 71-70, in an overtime. Bob Perry, 6-8 center, was high for St. Louis with 35 points.

Warriors Boost Pro Cage Lead

By United Press

The Philadelphia Warriors boosted their Eastern Division lead in the National Basketball Assn. to a husky 2 1-2 games today, while Fort Wayne's lead in the Western Division was sliced to two games.

The Warriors gained ground by whipping the New York Knickerbockers for the second straight time Sunday, 95-83, while the second-place Boston Celtics were dropping a 111-109 decision to the Rochester Royals.

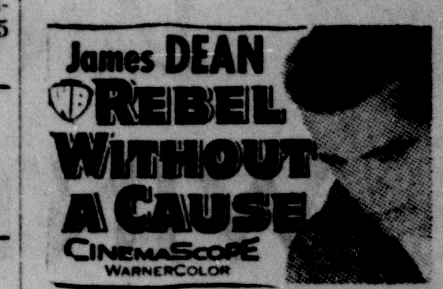

This last victory moved the Royals closer to Fort Wayne in the West, as the front-running Pistons were upset, 96-91, by St. Louis. Sunday's only other game, matching last-place teams, saw Minneapolis down Syracuse, 99-91.

In a player deal, the Royals gave the Hawks Jack Coleman and Jack McMahon for Dick Ricketts and Chris Harris.

Sen. Wiley Urges Protests Against Natural Gas Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) urged the public today to send the Senate an "avalanche of protests" against the pending natural gas bill.

Telephone, telegraph, write, petition, or visit senators, he advised in a speech prepared for delivery to groups opposing the bill. Wiley said chances are better than even that the bill will be passed "unless there is a blizzard of protest" against it. It would exempt natural gas producers from federal regulation.

The Wisconsin senator called the bill, which would exempt independent control, "evil," "greedy" and "as phony as a 3-cent piece."

Stevenson Hits Ike Message As Misleading

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson has attacked President Eisenhower's State of the Union message as a misleading, political attempt to paint a rosy picture of the nation's welfare.

The Democratic presidential hopeful made one of his strongest direct attacks on Mr. Eisenhower Sunday in a nationally televised interview.

The President's message to Congress Friday "seemed to be less a State of the Union message than a state of the Republican Party message," he said.

He called it "very misleading" and perhaps "more political in tone" than previous messages of the sort.

In addition, he charged, Mr. Eisenhower made a "curious statement" and "was not accurate" when he said the United States retains its leadership in world affairs.

"It appears to be the case that we have lost the lead in foreign affairs," Stevenson said. "Our system of collective security here is more precarious than it has been in a long while."

"We have talked too much threat, bluster, and bluff. We have boasted too much of our own strength and we have talked too much of unification only in terms of NATO. We have compromised ourselves on the issue of colonialism."

Ranging over a broad field of subjects, Stevenson said that Russia has taken an alarming lead in guided missiles and military preparedness. He also criticized Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for lagging in giving economic aid to underdeveloped nations.

The president got credit for his recommendations on aid to schools although Stevenson called them a complete reversal of White House thinking.

Heater Blast Kills Boy; Three Women Injured

CHICAGO (AP)—Firemen today ordered residents to evacuate buildings on either side of a house where a gas heater explosion killed a young boy and injured three women Sunday.

The evacuations were ordered because police feared the three-story apartment building would collapse, causing more injuries. Joseph Fernandez, 8, died seven hours after the blast ripped through his family's first floor apartment. The force of the explosion hurled him out of the apartment and onto a rear porch. The three injured women included the dead boy's mother, Mrs. Francisco Berreda, 30. She was standing outside the apartment when the explosion blasted the doorway into her face.

Also injured were two occupants of the upstairs apartment. Mrs. Connie Assenato, 38, suffered possible fractures of both legs when a refrigerator toppled onto her. A guest, Dolores Roma, 18, received a deep cut on her left knee.

State Health Dep't Forecasts 10 Million Population in Illinois by '60

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — An Illinois population of ten million by 1960 was predicted today by the state health department.

At the beginning of this year there were an estimated 9,370,000 persons in Illinois. The 1955 increase was 130,000.

All but about 5,000 of the increase is the amount by which births outnumber deaths, according to the Illinois Department of Public Health bureau of statistics.

In a review of 1955 based on statistics of the year's first 11 months, the bureau estimated 220,000 live births to Illinois mothers during 1955, about 3,000 more than in 1954. The birth rate, however, stood steady at 23.7 births per thousand inhabitants.

The babies born in 1956, the statisticians said, will have the best chances ever of living to a ripe old age. Average life of babies born this year will be almost 69 years. And continued progress in prevention of diseases and postponement of death will further improve their chances of living even longer.

This lengthening of the average life span is currently adding to our population to such an extent that we can expect, with continuing high birth and low death rates, that the Illinois population will easily attain ten million by 1960, the report said.

If the recent trend of more people moving into Illinois than move out continues, the prediction said, the ten million figure may even be attained by 1959.

Deaths among residents of Illinois also were about 3,000 higher during 1955 than in 1954. The bureau estimated that 95,000 inhabitants died during 1955 and that the death rate per thousand increased from 10.1 to 10.2. Most of the higher mortality occurred during July and August.

GREAT Circle

BY ROBERT CARSE

XXI
They fished the next day mostly off the motu, the broken scraps of old reef where the rollers breast and the birds whirled white and noisy and close. When the bonito ran, the birds followed. They sailed after in the canoe. Kauai sat balanced on the gunwale, his senit lines and mother of pearl hooks ready at his feet.

Kauai wore a broad-rimmed hat, plaited from the fine Tahitian grass called aeho, and dyed black and white. "My woman made it," Kauai said when he noticed Naish's glance. "It was the last gift she gave me."

"A pity I couldn't have met her," Naish said. "Back home, I have my own woman. There's a number of things aboard the ship that she made for me."

Kauai steadily watched Naish. Then he said, "Steer down to the ship, captain. That's what you want."

"Yes," Naish said without surprise. "Yes, it is."

The ship stunk stalely of oil, milled canvas, rotting wood and rats. Her seams in the expansion and contraction of the intermittent showers and powerful sun lay agape, the oakum loose. Children from the atoll had come to play upon her decks and they had left their fragments of toys as if in outright fright. Rats ran the rigging, cheeped, squeaked inside the try-works, and when he went aft to the companion hatch they snarled at him, their teeth bared.

He went back to the mizzen mast for a belaying pin for the rats, then he went down the companion ladder. It was of some pleasure to kill the rats; it gave release to the great turbulence of his emotion. But they nipped at him from behind, bit his legs, his ankles, leaped at him with fearless fury. He fought his way into his own cabin and found that they had made a nest on his bunk. His book bindings were gnawed away; the log book and his journal were indecipherable tatters, and before he fled all he could do was to take Phoebe's daguerrotype from the bulkhead.

Kauai was on the quarter deck with his paddle to protect him. "There's sulphur aboard to tend to them," Naish said. "With the ship opened up, that won't take long."

"Yes," Kauai said, and nodded. "But take a look there, captain."

He pointed into the sun-spread West stern of the ship. The canoe was big, rigged with a sail, and the man who steered her was still recognizable. It was Reuben Fime, a hat like Kauai's on his head, his woman forward of him among the tethered chickens, the water containers, the piles of taros and yams. Seeing them, Fime stood upright. He waved, and in the gesture Naish read no derision or apology, only an expression of farewell.

There wasn't to be a homeward-bound Cape Horn thrash for Finnie, and the unfaithful wife and the snuff-grinder could carry on in Marblehead or Lynn in whatever fashion they thought fit. Let them keep the town, Finnie must have said, and let them keep the whole of Massachusetts Bay, their ships, too. He was headed for the far, fair islands where life passed as easy as in a dream.

The canoe that held Finnie and the woman had crossed the horizon, disappeared behind the high gold wall of the sunset. Kauai stood beside the Jacob's ladder. Naish moved quickly to him. "Did Mata'ora," he said, "know that Finnie was going to push off?"

"Last night, yes, he knew," Kauai said. "He came on Finnie and the woman while they were loading the canoe."

"So you rigged it that today I came out aboard here with you?" Kauai had started to swing over the bulwark onto the ladder. But he looked back squarely at Naish. "That's right, captain," he said. "Mata'ora told me that our people have waited long enough. Your ship is sound. She can be sailed and you can go to your homes."

"Yes," Naish said in the same slow fashion that Kauai employed the word. "This is the picture of my woman." He took the daguerrotype of Phoebe out from inside his shirt. "I'm bound home to her."

"You're a lucky man," Kauai said.

Kauai picked up his paddle and sent the canoe slowly toward the motu. Dawn was pale enough to make the atoll palms show black. Cocks crowed; dogs barked. He felt sleepy and strangely empty, as though he'd just undergone some tremendous experience. He turned in the canoe so that he could not look back at the ship. Mata'ora was waiting on the beach.

"You fish without hooks or line alone in the night?" Mata'ora said as he hauled out the canoe.

"No," Kauai said. "I went to look at the ship. If she is to be careened, lines and anchors must be led from her."

"I know little of such," Mata'ora said. "My craft is the canoe. But I tell you this, Kauai, and you should listen. . . . Don't sail off in the ship with the Christians. It would make you a very great fool."

Kauai yawned and stretched his arms above his head. "I have no liking to sail aboard the ship."

"That's understood," Mata'ora said. "But stay away from the ship. Let the Christians work on her. She belongs to them."

"Yes, yes, old man," Kauai said in anger. "How many times must you tell me?"

"For you, I think," Mata'ora said, "there are not enough times."
